

Schedule Types

Schedule Type codes (aka "delivery method", "modality") indicate the primary way a course section will be taught. This code offers truth in advertising for students as they plan their schedules and register for classes.

Once a semester schedule becomes visible for student planning, sections should not be changed. Faculty are not permitted to alter a delivery method from the scheduled format without prior written approval from their dean's office and written confirmation from ASO.

Academic departments are responsible for the Schedule Type and Instructional Method coding on all class sections. Review your semester schedules carefully during Phase 1 (Initial Review) and submit all major adjustments by the published due date. Specific "Scheduling Rules" apply.
