Understanding Your Own Cultural Awareness

Have you ever met or worked with someone from a different background than you? Chances are, you have offended that person (with the best of intentions) as you have interacted with them. How do you minimize those offenses when you only mean well? Spend some time with Darah and Bryan to learn more about your own cultural rules and biases, which will be compared and contrasted with those of different cultures. Darah & Bryan will teach you to recognize how your own cultural identity and biases manifest themselves in your interactions with others.
