Course Requirements

Course Assignments, Assessments, and Grading Policy

Assignments

Quizzes

There will be quizzes for the majority of the modules during the semester. Quizzes will focus on material from the textbook chapters, Activity Maps, and other module material. Students are to have worked through the module before taking the quiz. Quizzes should be completed prior to attending class each week, which helps ensure students have done the assigned readings and are ready to participate in class discussions. Your lowest score will be dropped (e.g., you can miss one quiz without penalty).

Film Reviews

Some modules will require you to watch a film and write a short review instead of completing a quiz. There will be several films viewed during the semester. Each film has been chosen to educate students on historical landmark supreme court cases, civil rights, human rights, and issues related to family policy. After watching the film, students will complete a 2-page write-up in APA format, answering the questions posted in Canvas. See Canvas for more information and specific assignment guidelines and due dates. Film reviews should be completed prior to attending class each week, which helps ensure students have watched the film and are ready to participate in class discussions.

Activity Squares

Each week you will have the opportunity to choose assignments to complete. There will be an Activity Square for each module, which includes 9 possible assignments that you can choose from. Every week you will do 3 different activities from the Activity Square. The middle square is a required assignment and must be done for each module (either a quiz or film review), but the other two assignments are up to you. You can choose any of the other 8 assignments listed in each module, which might include watching a video, reading an additional article, completing an online activity, and more. See Canvas more details. Your lowest 2 activity square assignment scores will be dropped, which means you can choose to skip some or complete all and your lowest scores will be dropped. Note: You can choose to skip activity squares when other big assignments, like your My Representatives Assignment are due.

The Activity Square will look a little different in each module. Always check the Activity Square for each module and read the instructions carefully so you can get full credit for each assignment.

Policy Brief

You will be expected to prepare a written policy brief that summarizes empirical research on a specific family-related topic and provides policy recommendations. This assignment is designed to mimic a policy brief that you would submit to a professional organization (e.g., NCFR) to be published. To write your brief, you will summarize high-quality peer-reviewed research/organizing theory on your topic. The brief should be written with the intended audience (e.g., federal policymakers and their staff, practitioners, mental health administrators, educators, families, general public, etc.) in mind. See Canvas for more information and specific assignment guidelines and due dates. Policy briefs are to be submitted in a highly professional manner. Be wise, begin early. Discuss issues with Instructor BEFORE it is due.

My Representatives Assignment

You will be asked to identify the legislators who represent you at the level of state government and federal government. To do this, you identify your congressional district in which you are eligible to vote. Then, you will be asked to identify your two U.S. senators and one representative to the U.S. House of Representatives at the federal level. At the state level, you will be asked to identify the people that represent you in state government, including a state senator and state assembly representative. Once you have identified these 5 individuals, you will answer several questions for each person you identified (e.g., education, professional background, party affiliation, current committee or leadership positions, recent issues/stance). Think about how each person's background and life experiences might impact their view of family issues and the role of government in regards to families. More information about this assignment and how to identify your representatives is available on Canvas.

Legislative Bill Analysis

Students will review and choose one bill passed during the current year's general legislative session in Utah. Students will write short answer responses to several questions regarding the bill's creation, historical factors, societal need, and family impact. In total, short answer responses should be approximately two to three (2 - 3) pages of double spaced text. See Canvas for more information and specific assignment guidelines and due dates. Be wise, begin early.

General Description of the Subject Matter of Each Lecture or Discussion

Module 1: Introduction and Reluctance to Family Policy

This module will provide a brief introduction to family policy, including why most students enroll in this course because it is required and are generally reluctant towards family policy. Students will also learn about the importance of family policy to support American families.

Module 2: Defining Family Policy

In this module, students will have the opportunity to think about how they define family for personal, legal, and policy purposes. Additionally, students will learn about how to define family policy and what factors impact considering family policy as a distinct field.

Module 3: Policymakers and the Legislative Process

Students will learn more about the legislative process, including how bills are created, passed, and implemented. Students will learn more about the differences between the three branches of government and how Utah's local government works. In addition, students will watch a recorded guest lecture from a local representative in Utah and will identify who their local representatives are.

Module 4: Family Change in America

Students that will learn about major changes to families throughout American history and consider how those changes relate to policy change. Additionally, we will learn about individualism and how it impacts American views toward policy and governmental programs.

Module 5: Families, Society, and Polarization

Students that will learn about some theoretical perspectives related to family change, including the theory of paradox and worldviews on family change. Students will explore three different worldviews related to family change over time in America, including the related antecedents and consequences. Finally, students will learn more about political polarization and how that impacts family policy.

Module 6: Family Impact Lens

Students will learn about the family impact lens in more detail, including how to use family impact discussion starters, family impact checklists, and family impact analyses. Students will also learn about family impact seminars and how they can help connect researchers and policymakers in nonpartisan discussion to promote evidence-based policies.

Module 7: Advocacy vs Education in Family Policy

Students will learn about the difference between policy advocacy work and policy alternative education. Students will reflect on whether they see themselves as more of an advocate or an educator when it comes to policy.

Module 8: Policy Brief

In this module, students will spend the week researching and writing a full and complete policy brief. Students should spend time reading articles and other sources of information related to their chosen policy topic.

Module 9: Family Policy Topics: Gender and Caregiving

In this module, students will begin exploring contemporary topics in family policy. To start, students will learn more about gender, caregiving, and policy, including women's history in America, the Suffrage Movement, changing gender roles, gender inequality at home, economic inequality (e.g., gender pay gap), working parents, caregiving, and costs of child raising. Students will choose the topic(s) that interest them most and spend time learning more about those. Additionally, students will watch the film Iron Jawed Angels to learn more about the Women's Suffrage Movement and write a film review.

Module 10: Family Policy Topics: Income

In this module, students will learn more about policies aimed at supporting families living in poverty or low-income. Students will learn about how socioeconomic status impacts families and children and explore policies in this area, such as welfare, food stamps, and more. The difference between individualistic and structural perspectives on poverty will be explored. Additionally, students will watch the film Growing Up Poor in America and write a film review.

Module 11: Family Policy Topics: Housing and Heritage

In this module students will learn more about the importance of housing and neighborhoods for families. Students will review historical policies related to housing and explore the current housing market and policies. Additionally, students will learn more about citizenship and heritage. Students will watch the film The House We Live In - Race: The Power of an Illusion and write a film review.

Module 12: Family Policy Topics: Marriage and Parenthood

In this module students will learn more about policies related to marriage and parenthood, which include marriage and divorce proceedings, parenting rights and responsibilities, and more. Some landmark Supreme Court cases will be discussed, including Loving v. Virginia, Obergefell v. Hodges, and Roe v. Wade. Additionally, students will watch the Loving film and write a film review.

Module 13: Family Policy Today

In this module, students will reflect on what they have learned in this class and why family policy matters. Students will explore the state of the field today, including what scholars, researchers, and policymakers believe are future directions for family policy. Students will read articles from a Special Issue of the Journal of Family Theory and Review on Family Policy. Finally, students will explore any additional topics that they would like to learn more about related to family policy and reflect on how they will be involved in family policy in the future.

Generative AI

Acceptable and Unacceptable Use of AI

The use of generative AI tools (e.g. ChatGPT, Co-Pilot, Dall-e, etc.) is permitted in this course for the following activities:

- Brainstorming and refining your ideas;
- Fine tuning your research questions;
- Finding information on your topic (be sure you check for accuracy and properly cite);
- Drafting an outline to organize your thoughts; and
- Checking grammar and style.

The use of generative AI tools is not permitted in this course for the following activities:

- Impersonating you in classroom contexts, such as by using the tool to compose discussion board responses assigned to you.
- Generating answers to quiz questions.
- Writing a draft of a written assignment.
- Writing entire sentences, paragraphs, or papers to complete class assignments.
- To complete entire assignments.

You are responsible for the information you submit based on an AI query (for instance, that it does not violate intellectual property laws, or contain misinformation or unethical content). Your use of AI tools must be properly documented and cited to stay within university policies on academic honesty. You must disclose any use of AI using the MInE method. You must use APA citations in text and on a reference list.

Any student work submitted using AI tools should clearly indicate what work is the student's work and what part is generated by the AI. In such cases, no more than 25% of the student work should be generated by AI. If any part of this is confusing or uncertain, please reach out to me for a conversation before submitting your work. Any situation when an assignment is found to have used generative AI tools in unauthorized ways will be treated as an academic honesty violation. When in doubt about permitted usage, please ask for clarification.

Using Remote Testing Software

This course does not use remote testing software.

This course uses remote testing software. Remote test-takers may choose their remote testing locations. Please note, however, that the testing software used for this may conduct a brief scan of remote test-takers' immediate surroundings, may require use of a webcam while taking an exam, may require the microphone be on while taking an exam, or may require other practices to confirm academic honesty. Test-takers therefore shall have no expectation of privacy in their test-taking location during, or immediately preceding, remote testing. If a student strongly objects to using test-taking software, the student should contact the instructor at the beginning of the semester to determine whether alternative testing arrangements are feasible. Alternatives are not guaranteed.

Accommodations/Students with Disabilities

Students needing accommodations due to a permanent or temporary disability, pregnancy or pregnancy-related conditions may contact UVU Accessibility Services at accessibilityservices@uvu.edu or 801-863-8747.

Accessibility Services is located on the Orem Campus in BA 110.

Deaf/Hard of Hearing students requesting ASL interpreters or transcribers can contact Accessibility Services to set up accommodations. Deaf/Hard of Hearing services can be contacted at DHHservices@uvu.edu

DHH is located on the Orem Campus in BA 112.

Academic Integrity

At Utah Valley University, faculty and students operate in an atmosphere of mutual trust. Maintaining an atmosphere of academic integrity allows for free exchange of ideas and enables all members of the community to achieve their highest potential. Our goal is to foster an intellectual atmosphere that produces scholars of integrity and imaginative thought. In all academic work, the ideas and contributions of others must be appropriately acknowledged and UVU students are expected to produce their own original academic work.

Faculty and students share the responsibility of ensuring the honesty and fairness of the intellectual environment at UVU. Students have a responsibility to promote academic integrity at the university by not participating in or facilitating others' participation in any act of academic dishonesty. As members of the academic community, students must become familiar with their rights and responsibilities. In each course, they are responsible for knowing the requirements and restrictions regarding research and writing, assessments, collaborative work, the use of study aids, the appropriateness of assistance, and other issues. Likewise, instructors are responsible to clearly state expectations and model best practices.

Further information on what constitutes academic dishonesty is detailed in UVU Policy 541: Student Code of Conduct.

Equity and Title IX

Utah Valley University does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, age (40 and over), disability, veteran status, pregnancy, childbirth, or pregnancy-related conditions, citizenship, genetic information, or other basis protected by applicable law, including Title IX and 34 C.F.R. Part 106, in employment, treatment, admission, access to educational programs and activities, or other University benefits or services. Inquiries about nondiscrimination at UVU may be directed to the U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights or UVU's Title IX Coordinator at 801-863-7999 – TitleIX@uvu.edu – 800 W University Pkwy, Orem, 84058, Suite BA 203.

Religious Accommodation

UVU values and acknowledges the array of worldviews, faiths, and religions represented in our student body, and as such provides supportive accommodations for students. Religious belief or conscience broadly includes religious, non-religious, theistic, or non-theistic moral or ethical beliefs as well as participation in religious holidays, observances, or activities. Accommodations may include scheduling or due-date modifications or make-up assignments for missed class work.

To seek a religious accommodation, a student must provide written notice to the instructor and the Director of Accessibility Services at accessibilityservices@uvu.edu. If the accommodation relates to a scheduling conflict, the notice should include the date, time, and brief description of the difficulty posed by the conflict. Such requests should be made as soon as the student is aware of the prospective scheduling conflict.

While religious expression is welcome throughout campus, UVU also has a specially dedicated space for meditation, prayer, reflection, or other forms of religious expression.
